

Participatory Action Research

Participatory action research is a collaborative research process that seeks to intentionally measure the service/product/process or other aspects that are focus of the inquiry (or intention)

